

The FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. I work from home, and I would say that telephone solicitation has gone from five to seven daily calls to approximately one per week. These calls are highly disruptive when I am working, and they are not any less disruptive when my family is home in the evenings and we are trying to enjoy our dinner together. Please do not lessen the protection we are now receiving - to do so is to lower the level of privacy we have in our own home.
